Certification with Confidence

At Boshard, we strive to continually identify and mitigate risk across all operations of the organisation in order to make a positive and sustainable impact on the environment in which we operate.

For this reason we have developed our very own compliance manual which is based on our ISO 9001: 2008, ISO 14001: 2004, and OHSAS 18001: 2007 certifications.

This manual not only integrates our quality, environmental, and safety standards, but guides our management practices and systems in order to constantly improve our business processes. We have an impressive track record of bridging our Integrated Management System with the realities of on-site operations, and we are able to do so by ensuring that our employees, as well as those suppliers with whom we interact externally, are kept regularly informed of the details and procedures outlined in this document.

OUR MANAGEMENT TEAM

BOSHARD Construction has undergone significant change from a management perspective during the past couple of years. The most recent is the appointment of new members to the management team as of 01 July 2016.
